

MOBBED BY WOMEN.

Attempt to Lynch a Man in West Forty-second Street.

They Said He Tried to Assault a Three-Year-Old Girl.

Williams, Who Was Rescued with Difficulty, Denies It.

A man, who gave the name of George Williams, forty-one years old, but who refused to give his business or address, was a prisoner in the Jefferson Market police court to-day. He was scarcely able to walk to court as the result of a beating at the hands of a number of women in West Forty-second street early in the morning.

The fact that he was not actually killed by the intervention of a policeman of the West Thirty-seventh street station-house, who rescued the man with difficulty.

Williams is charged with an attempted criminal assault on three-year-old Mary Ellen Hogan, of 62 West Forty-second street, who was taken to the hospital in the cellar of the house and immediately assaulted by her neighbors. Williams was surrounded by a mob of women and the policemen tried to get her prisoner from Williams, but the officer managed to hold them off until assistance came. The mob then turned on the policeman and the infuriated women following to the door.

HIS MOTHER GIVES BONDS.

William Roberts, an Insane Convict, is Discharged.

Justice TRUX, of the Supreme Court, today directed the discharge of William Roberts, on the consent of his mother to give a bond that she would look after her son.

In 1880 Roberts was convicted in General Sessions of having burgled tools in his possession, and was sentenced to six years and ten months imprisonment. He was found to be insane and was sent to the State Hospital for the Insane.

His mother, Mrs. Roberts, who is now 60 years of age, and who has been married for 20 years, has been looking after her son since he was discharged from the hospital.

THE WILY BOMB-MAKER.

He Blew Up Anarchists and Puzzled the Police of Two Empires.

In his office at New Scotland Yard last night, Inspector Murray, chief of the "specials," told to keep watch over the anarchists. He was engrossed in the perusal of a large official-looking document, when he was interrupted by the entrance of two of his principal subordinates, Detective-Sergeants Mulligan and Lerat.

They had come to inquire if he had any orders to give them before they left the "Yard" for the night.

"Ah, boys," said the Inspector, looking up, "I was just going to send for you."

More work, sir?" said Mulligan.

"Ah, and how work," said the Inspector, with a significant shake of his head. "I have just received word from the French police that Lucien Miasme, Louis Roche and Jean Lerat, who disappeared from Paris some weeks ago, are reported to be in London."

Miasme, Roche and Lerat," repeated Mulligan, thoughtfully. "They are the fellows who were tried for that No. 1 case affair, aren't they?"

"Yes, and who should have been hanged for it," replied the Inspector. "I was in Paris at the time, and attended the trial. There was no doubt that they were guilty—they themselves hardly denied it—but the case was mismanaged, and the jury were scared for their own skins, and the end of it was that three most villainous murderers were let loose on society again."

"It was a big business, that No. 1 case explosion," said Mulligan.

"Fah! big enough for anything. The church was full of people—women and

ANDERSON AGAIN ACCUSED.

Mrs. Chenoweth Says He Wrote Her Threatening Letters.

He's the Man Who Shot Isaac Newton Baker Three Years Ago.

Orville M. Anderson, a blond young Southerner, of 101 West Ninety-seventh street, was a prisoner in Harlem court this morning, charged with writing threatening letters to petite Mrs. Phirza Chenoweth, the pretty wife of a boss paper-hanger, who was in the same flat.

Anderson is the young man who, about three years ago, shot and dangerously wounded Isaac Newton Baker, at Cronon-on-the-Hudson, in Westchester County. He is still under indictment and out on $5,000 bail.

The Anderson-Baker affair was the sensation of the day at the time it occurred.

This latest charge combines a number of peculiar circumstances. Mrs. Chenoweth told Justice Taintor to-day that she was in fear of her life over the demonstrative attentions of Anderson, which she tried to evade as much as possible, and which she never met her in the hall he would force his attentions upon her.

Said Anderson: "Suddenly this woman's friendship changed. She told stories about me in the house. She said she was in fear of her life over the demonstrative attentions of Anderson, which she tried to evade as much as possible, and which she never met her in the hall he would force his attentions upon her."

DESPOILERS OF RAILINGS.

One of a Gang of Brass Thieves Captured After a Chase.

At 2 o'clock this morning Policemen O'Connor, of the East Sixty-seventh street squad, saw three men acting suspiciously in the vicinity of Banker Schiff's residence, 62 Fifth avenue. At his approach the men fled in different directions.

O'Connor gave chase to one who carried a bag under his arm. Seeing that he was pursued the man dropped the bag, and the policeman did not stop to pick it up, but continued his chase and ran the man down. When searched some brass rods of a railing, stolen from the stoop of the banker's house, were found on him. The bag also contained portions of the railing.

The prisoner described himself as Emanuel Newman, thirty-eight years of age, of 101 West Ninety-seventh street. He was remanded by Justice McMahon, at the Yorkville Police Court.

HIS BROTHER IN CHARGE.

Missing Druggist's Wife Said to Be Dissatisfied with This.

PORTCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 7.—There is likely to be fun to-day in the drug store of F. A. Bashmann, the missing druggist's brother, his wife, his brother, Carl Bashmann, of Easton, Pa., and the Sheriff are expected to figure. Druggist Bashmann left Portchester on July 23, saying that he intended to take a trip into the mountains. He has not been heard from for over a week, and yesterday his brother, who is also a druggist, came here and took charge of his business. He placed an attachment on the property to prevent a possible raid by creditors.

The missing druggist is Overseer of the Poor in the village, and his name is correct. Carl Bashmann says he is satisfied that the business is in a prosperous condition, and that he believes his brother left town on account of domestic troubles. The missing man's wife, Mrs. Bashmann, is a widow of a Third avenue, New York druggist, when he married her.

COXSACK WOMAN REMOVED.

He Claims that He Slashed Mrs. Fitzgerald in Self-Defense.

A Little Girl's Story of the Fight Aboard a New Haven Boat.

Coxsack James Gorman, of the United States man-of-war Minnesota, who, while on the New Haven steamer Northam, last night cut Mrs. Margaret Fitzgerald about the head and throat with a razor and then tried to cut his own throat, was removed this morning at the Tombs Court to the City Court, for Michael Cohen, an east-side store-keeper, whom Pauline Greenberg has sued to recover $10,000 for alleged breach of promise of marriage. A deputy sheriff took the order and went in quest of Cohen, who had not been arrested at last night.

Miss Greenberg is quite a belle in her circle of acquaintances, and her parents are well-to-do. Two years ago she met Cohen, and it appeared to be a case of love at first sight, for they became very devoted to each other apparently, and their friends generally understood they were lovers in the true sense of the word.

In January last they agreed to marry on July 28, and Miss Greenberg began preparations for the wedding. Cohen's business had suffered from the general business depression, and he told his sweetheart that he would like to have a divorce, but he could not get one, as he was short of funds and could not hire a hall, as he intended.

However, if Pauline would loan him $200 he would engage a hall and after a ceremony according to the Hebrew rite they would have a banquet fit for kings. Pauline gave Michael the $200 willingly.

The day set for the wedding feast arrived and all the invited guests were gathered at the appointed hour. The bride, arrayed in her wedding garments, waited patiently for the bridegroom. Michael came not at the appointed hour, and when some one found him and took him before the now charmed bride, she was so angry that she never really intended to wed her, and she went home in tears, while the assembled guests looked on.

Miss Greenberg subsequently ascertained that Cohen had found another girl in Brooklyn and had also engaged to marry her, which accounted for his failure to meet his engagement with her.

SAYS MIKE IS FALSE.

And So Pauline Greenberg Sues Him for $10,000 Damages.

They Were to Have Had a Big Wedding in a Hall.

Pauline Put Up the Money for It, Then Cohen Backed Out.

An order of arrest was issued to-day by Judge Conlan, of the City Court, for Michael Cohen, an east-side store-keeper, whom Pauline Greenberg has sued to recover $10,000 for alleged breach of promise of marriage. A deputy sheriff took the order and went in quest of Cohen, who had not been arrested at last night.

HARBUS SIGNS FOR LIBERTY.

Now in Jail for Failing to Pay Alimony.

Wants to Be Released on the Nominal Bail of $1.

Judge Mischoff, of the Court of Common Pleas, to-day heard arguments upon the motion of counsel for Abraham I. Harbus requiring his wife, Clara, who is suing him for a divorce, to show cause why he should not be released from jail. Harbus is now confined in Ludlow Street Jail in 3000 bail for failing to pay his wife the alimony and counsel fee ordered by the Court.

Harbus's counsel asked that his client be released upon the nominal bail of $1. He said that the charges that the client intended to run away were false and that he could not run away if he wished as he has no money.

Mrs. Harbus was married to the defendant about six years ago in Russia. Shortly after Harbus came to America, and later his wife followed. She, it is alleged, went to live with relatives in Hartford, Conn.

Harbus's lawyer claimed that Mrs. Harbus had never established a legal residence in this city, and that she has no legal right to bring the divorce action here.

An affidavit by two of Harbus's friends was filed. They were to the effect that the plaintiff had offered to allow Harbus to get a divorce if he would leave her.

Mrs. Harbus alleges that her husband has married one Clara Cohen, who is named as co-defendant in the divorce proceedings. An affidavit made by the Judge, which states that the co-defendant was a woman named Clara Cohen, who was living at the same place, and that he represented himself as unmarried.

She says she entered into common law marriage with Harbus, and lived with him at 34 Monroe street.

Since Harbus has been confined in jail both women have called upon him, and at times have furnished much amusement to the jail employees.

Judge Mischoff reserved decision.
